Success Attends The Celebration

The Empire Day celebrations under the joint auspices of the Vulcan and Champion lodges B.P.O.E. were somewhat marred by the cold and showery weather, but if it had been last year, the intercession caused by rain, would have been quite welcome. However, the program was pretty well carried through in spite of the weather.

The first event was a softball game between Harmony "Blue Birds" and "Paisioid" "Orphans." As usual this contest was hard fought as the final score would indicate—7 to 6 in favor of the "Orphans." Then followed a baseball game between Vulcan and Grannum which was a fairly good display and was anybody's game until an adjournment for rain, after which Vulcan took the lead and finished with a score of 2 to 1 in their favor.

The second baseball game scheduled, was between Grannum and Champion and apparently insufficient practice or stage fright caused the collapse of the home team who went down to defeat to the tune of 0 to 6.

Umpire—Sklar. On the mound for Champion—Steeves and Walker. Catcher—Fred Watts and Geo. Hargreaves.

Another softball game which was deferred until 7 o'clock, was by no means the least important as the Barons softball circle accomplished the feat of downing the dauntless "Orphans" by 10 to 0.

The big dance in the evening drew a capacity crowd to the community hall where the dance orchestra and band of rhythm. Both showings of the picture, "The Life of a Bengal Lancer" were well attended.

A Neighbourly Act

The old Pioneer spirit of friendliness and helping each other, is certainly not dead yet in the West, as was proved on Saturday by a surprise visit paid to Fred Aleock, who has been ill for some time, when George Aleock and his two sons Harold and George, and Mr. Pacey and his son Fred, came and sang and played the guitar, a kindly deed that Mr. and Mrs. Aleock deeply appreciated.

Buried in Calgary

W. J. Clements of Carman, who died early Wednesday morning, had been in ill health for the past two months. The funeral was held in the afternoon at the United church, well attended and by a large number of his friends from Lomond. Fosters of Calgary in charge of the arrangements took the remains to Calgary for burial.

Swimming Pool Fixed

A Bee was held at the Bar U ranch Wednesday afternoon to build a bath house, diving boards, tables and benches. The ladies provided lunch and were to thank all those that donated their time and money. $10.25 to date was handed in to the Merguard community who wish to thank all those who helped to make the pool such an improvement.

Local sportsmen are pleased to see the water holes and some lake full of water. A number of wild ducks are passing for the season, which promises good hunting this fall.

Many Gather To Attend Last Rites

Champion streets were lined with cars Thursday morning, having brought in a large number from the district to attend the funeral service of George Franklin Smith, a well known farmer here. The end came after a lingering illness of two years duration.

The Elks lodge of which he was a member had charge of the service with Rev. Peter Dawson in the Community hall, a building he had helped to get built. An old timer he had served the Municipality as a councillor and lent his support to anything that was a benefit to the district.

After the service, Snodgrass of Vulcan, who had charge of the arrangements, transported the remains to Calgary for interment in Burnside cemetery, several cars accompanying it.

Fifteen Receive Dollar

Last Wednesday was the last Bank night at the picture show, the sum to be drawn for amounted to $15, and instead of giving it to one person it was decided to divide it among fifteen; the names of the lucky winners follow: Mrs. McMath, Mrs. J. H. Bastin, Miss Ethel Dinnert, Miss Marjorie Hopkings, Mrs. Oscar Castor, Mrs. W. A. McIntyre, Martin Gotzenberg, George Smith, Frank Kramer, Don Stephenson, Harold Stephenson, Art Jopling, G. K. McLean, Theodore Holm and Joe Kurtz.

Killed By Train

It was a gruesome find Saturday morning about quarter to eight when the cut up body of a man was found on the track by the Station here. The tragedy must have occurred when a freight train went south around two o'clock in the morning and the trainmen from some cause or other must have slipped between the cars to his death. He was later identified as Ernest Grill, of Spruce Lake, Sask., about 35 years of age. An inquest was held in Vulcan.

W. I. Win Contest

In the Provincial contest at the recent W. I. convention held in Edmonton, Champion branch was awarded first prize for their 1935 programme. The committee responsible was as follows: Mesdames Braubler, Bastin, Dawson, Johansen and M. Clevver.

"Well, hardly," agreed Dad. "Is that all, Louise?"

"Very nearly. She says 'Let me know what time Nancy will arrive at Colorado Springs, and I will send some trustworthy person to meet her with an automobile, as Pine Ridge is on a branch road and our only train leaves early in the morning. If no one greets her on arrival, instruct her, please, to sit quietly in the station until called for.'"

A girlish cheek escaped Aunt Judy.

"You can check yourself in the parcel room, Nance! Proceed, Louise. I beg pardon for interrupting."

Jack winked at one aunt as the other retorted: "You're as kind as the children, Judith. But there's not much more. She says: 'I shall be sure that this experience will improve your daughter.' How's that, James?"

Said Dad, with spirit: "Why on earth should she imagine that our Nance needs improvement?"

"And how would she get it in a little one-horse western town?" asked Mother.

"This way," smiled Aunt Louise, reverting to the massive: "She would get away from the narrow New England viewpoint. She would learn something about the vastness of her country."

"I suppose she means those 'great open spaces' we read about," laughed Jack, while his aunt, ignoring him, continued:

"The milder climate would improve her health, and she would experience the satisfaction of being self-supporting. Please write at once and believe me, dear James, your affectionate though unseen cousin, Cousin Nelson."

Aunt Louise looked up. "Well," she declared, drawing a deep breath, "I call that the—very limit!"

For this meticulous teacher of English to use an expression even remotely approaching slang, was an event in itself. Her family smiled, and Nance retorted: "It's plain, Aunt Lou, that this is an occasion when Webster's Unabridged is totally inadequate! Dad dear, how can this venerable lady be your first cousin? And did she acquire her outlandish name because cousins are the state flower of Colorado?"

"Better look up your history, my dear," replied her father. "Cousin Columbine must be over seventy and Colorado didn't become a state until 1876. I'll admit that I probably remember the date because it's also the year that I was born," he added honestly.

"But how," asked Jack, "did an uncle of yours land way off in the wild West Dad?"

"You've heard the story numerous times, son."

"Not for a long while, and I never gave any special thought. Seems queer for one lone member of a family to start off for the wilderness. How'd it happen?"

James Nelson glanced at his sister, and she said: "As I recall the story, Father's half-brother, Jethro

Nelson, who was a good bit older than the others, possessed the wanderlust. He yearned to see the country besides his native New Hampshire, and as his young wife was fired with the same ambition, they started West in a covered wagon, drawn by oxen unless my memory's faulty."

"Alone?" questioned the boy, leaning forward eagerly.

"Oh, no! There were three other persons in the caravan, or whatever they called it. Part of these pioneers turned back somewhere in Kansas frightened, I believe, by the immensity of the prairie. Others pushed on to California; but it was rumormongered in the Colorado mountains that hired Uncle Jed in that direction, and unbeknownst for circumstances that turned him stop where he did. Of course it wasn't Pine Ridge then—just unsettled wilderness. But the journey had proved too hard on his wife, and instead of reaching some settlement, Denver or possibly Aurora (which was flourishing because of gold rush) for the exact time, baby was born in a covered wagon at the spot which was later to be called Pine Ridge."

"And that baby was Cousin Columbine?" asked Nance.

Her aunt nodded, while Dad took up the narrative.

"Here's where her name comes in, daughter. Early next morning Uncle Jed discovered some enormous blue and white columbines growing near by and carried the whole clump in to the new mother. The story goes that she uttered an exclamation of rapture at their beauty, and cried out: 'Columbine! I know now what you call our little daughter!'"

"Do you suppose," asked Jack, "if he'd presented the lady with a cactus blossom she'd have named her baby Cactaceous?"

"Goodness gracious, boy, have you no sentiment?" reproved Aunt Judy. "And the fact that you've been studying botany cries aloud. Cousin Columbine! I never heard the word before."

"Nor I," admitted Mother. "But do you mean to say, Jim, that a man who possessed the wanderlust was content to stay right where Fate landed him for the rest of his natural life?"

"Indeed no," spoke up Aunt Louise, "and in my opinion Uncle Jed's poor wife had a lonely time of it. He was forever leaving her to seek gold, silver, and precious metals. I imagine, after other settlers joined them. Years later he did strike silver at Leadville; but his wife had died of heart failure. So I believe she never saw the mansion Cousin Columbine's so proud of. Uncle Jed was the big man of the town in Pine Ridge, though the place can't be much more than a settlement now. Anyway, it isn't on the map."

"And she expects us to send Nance to a place like this?" gasped Mother. "I don't realize it was so isolated."

"But it's home to Cousin Columbine," observed Aunt Judy, "and perhaps she's lonely."

"I wonder if she's satisfied with it?" suggested Jack. "I have a touch of this wanderlust myself."

"You'd make a swell dreamer," jeered his sister; and then, being a good deal more than a dreamer, she said: "I keep thinking of the admirers of whom Cousin Columbine would disapprove, promptly forgot the matter."

CHAPTER III.

Now, meeting Jack's eager eyes as he peered on the foot of her antique four-poster, the memory of that family dinner all rushed back. Regardless of the cold air and a squeaky pink crepe nightgown, Nance sat up, startled, and stared at her brother in dismay.

"Why, Jack Nelson! You—you're not implying that I ought to go way off to Colorado just for a—paltry twenty-five dollars a month, are you?"

"Pipe down," warned Jack, "or like as not Mother'll come butting in, and I want to talk things over with you before she starts sleep. Nance, I keep thinking about Dad. You know how he is—always being the bright side of everything; but he admitted to-night that he was down and out. That means fat broke, doesn't it?"

And even if I got some sort of job it probably wouldn't much more than pay my car fares and lunches for a year or two. And there's you—simply a perfect ornament and—"

"Thanks," broke in his sister coldly, "sliding down and put the put again. 'You don't need to rub in it just now, do you?'"

"I don't intend to rub in anything; but there's no need of side-stepping the truth, either. I suppose you could help Mother 'round the house some, but with Aunt Judy gone, and Aunt Lou home only Sundays, there won't be an awful lot to do. And a notion that I rather keep busy anyway, so's not to think about things. I suppose she's just about heart-broken over you."

Nancy said nothing for a moment; then: "Do you think it will add to her happiness if I'm two thousand miles away, all alone, living with a queer old woman who's never seen, and dying of homesickness?"

"No," said Jack, "I think she'd worry herself sick. But if you weren't alone, Nance—I'll want you."

"You!" interrupted the girl, amazed. "Why, how do you know that Cousin Columbine would take you?"

Jack hitched an inch or two nearer, his eyes bright with interest. "Do you think it will add to her happiness if I'm two thousand miles away, all alone, living with a queer old woman who's never seen, and dying of homesickness?"

"I don't expect her to; but she might get me a job on some ranch. Sis, I've always been crazy to see the West, and with no help but my own, I'm earning my own living, things would be easier for Dad and Mother."

"But you said yourself, Jack, that what Cousin Columbine wanted was a slave!"

"Oh, forget it. I was just talking. If she's a woman come in every day of the week, I'll be glad to do the work of a dozen."

"If we were near enough so we'd get together every little while, it wouldn't be so bad. And while it's raining, I'll be glad to do the work of a dozen."

"The girl gave way to a reluctant assent."

"My appetite as fearful a thing as that? Why you talk as if we'd have to apply to the Salvation Army for Christmas dinner! Dad can't be so hard up that we'll have to worry about food, Jack."

"But it costs less to support three than five, my dear. You can't get away from that. If you say it's raining, I'll be glad to do the work of a dozen."

"Nancy looked at the boy curiously, as if she was observing a stranger. Jack was the seventeen and his sister had always regarded him with the tolerance nineteen bestows upon a younger brother. Now, suddenly, he seemed older than heretofore, for at the first hint of trouble he had put his shoulder to the wheel. It made Nancy feel a bit ashamed of herself; for she knew that her brother's boyish curiosity to see the West which caused him to make this plan, but a genuine desire to help his father."

"Well?" he questioned with impatience.

"The girl drew in a quivering breath. 'Do—do you think me wicked? I'll admit to the idea—terrible!'"

"Oh, be your age, Nance! We're not going into darkest Africa. 'I know' but it's so awfully far away. Suppose we get sick—bad appendicitis or something."

Jack laughed loudly.

"The only way you'd get appendicitis is by over-eating! We never have been sick—either of us—ro you worry? I don't say it'll be all run by my means; but we will be learning something about the country as the old lady said; and it's not a life sentence. We'll come home soon as Dad gets his business straightened out. Be a sport, Sis, and let me write the letter."

"Without asking Dad—or Mother?"

He nodded.

"There'll be time enough to talk it over when we hear from Cousin Columbine. Like as not she'll veto the whole scheme; but even if they say consent after we've made our plans, Nance, no harm will be done."

"Well," agreed Nancy with sudden resolution, "go on and write."

"That's the stuff!"

Jack slid his long legs off the bed and proceeded, as noiselessly as possible to open the window and gaze out.

"Night, Sis. I know you'd see sense after I showed it to you. And don't you dare let on we're up to anything. Just keep mum."

It was not so hard to "keep mum" as Nancy expected. The next few days were strenuous ones for the older members of the family, and the amusing fact from Colorado was completely forgotten. Jack, who did not return to Exeter on Monday, spent two of those days driving his mother and Aunt Judy to Edgemoor, in his beloved "Mary Ann," so they could look into conditions at the old home and decide what furniture must be sent out from the city.

Treatment Was Success

"Twilight Narcosis" New Cure For Mild Mental Cases

Twilight sleep for men as well as women, during mild insanity of both sexes, was reported to the American Psychiatric Association, at Washington.

Several successful cases were described, including one that might be called "stock marketitis," a man caught in the 1929 crash, who not only broke mentally but was in physical pain.

This form of sleep, which he called "twilight narcosis," was described by A. L. Shoop, M.D., of Kansas City. He gives patients a form of sodium amylal, which puts them into a condition resembling drugged sleep.

They can speak occasionally, but are mostly too drowsy even for that. This condition lasts for hours, during which the physician talks to them. His words are the only treatment.

The businessman who cracked up after 1929 was worried, sleep poor, and unable to work, had pain in the back and other places, shriveling of some parts of his body, and spells of sleeplessness.

Examination showed no disease. He was put to sleep twice, 12 days apart. Each time his physician called, telling him he could hope for full recovery, that he had no internal disorders, that he was not shriveled and that his brain was normal.

A few weeks of rest followed and the man recovered. He became healthy and returned to business.

First Gliding By Night

Member Of London Club Made A Perfect Landing

A member of the London Gliding Club, C. Nicholson, has done what is believed to be the first gliding by night in the United Kingdom. His plane, a biplane, landed on the highest point of the downs by members of the club, and the moon shining, took the glider to make the flight in safety. Clouds came over the moon after he had been in the air about 40 minutes, and he decided to land.

A flash-jump which Nicholson carried, and the head-lamps of a motor car, were used to exchange messages between the pilot and members of the London Gliding Club on the ground. Asked by motor car lights and the hurricane lamps the glider made a perfect landing.

National Fuel Policy

The directors include: Wholesale dealers; retailers; electric, E. S. Smith, C. T. Child, Regina and R. P. Strickland, Saskatoon.

Elected to the retailers' association committee were: R. Druy, Regina, and Mr. Smith and Mr. Strickland.

Have Four-Hour Day

Members of the Munich Bird Society of Munich, Germany, have discovered that storks fly south to escape the European winter travel only four hours a day, spending the other 20 in feeding, resting, and sleeping. They average over 30 miles an hour in their flight of thousands of miles over the stormy airways.

Food Supply Threatened

Ravages of influenza threaten the winter's food supply of Eskimos along the Arctic coast, for while the influenza season is here there aren't enough able bodied men to join the hunt.

Little Helps For This Week

I pray through The O Lord with my whole heart, I will show forth His Thy marvelous works. Psalm 9:1.

Thrice bless all our blessings be. When you look through them to Thee; When each glad heart its tribute pays Of love, and gratitude and praise.

That which befits us, embodied in beauty and wonder as we are, is cheerfulness and courage, and the endeavor to realize our aspirations. Shall not the heart that has received so much truth the Power by which it lives? May it not quit other leadings and listen to the Soul that has guided it so gently and taught it so much, secure that the future will be worthy of the past.—R. W. Emerson.

I have experienced that the habit of taking out of the hand of the Lord every little blessing and brightness on our path, confirms us in an especial manner in communion with His love.

A Record Achievement

Germany's Graf Zeppelin Has Crossed Ocean Ninety Times

Grat Zeppelin, Germany's veteran air-liner, has theoretically passed the earth 24 times, if you figure out the mileage covered by it during 423 trips in 24 1/2 hours in the air.

This record achievement was noted on the occasion of the resumption of the South American service of the Graf after a winter interval.

The Graf Zeppelin crossed the ocean 90 times up to this year. It carried altogether around 30,000 passengers, five million pieces of mail and more than 84,000 pounds of all sorts of freight.

"Can any of you," the teacher asked, "tell me what 'amphibious' means and give a sentence to illustrate?"

A bright little negro held up his hand. "I know, sah! It's shbbing. Mos' fish stories am shbbing!"

It is a criminal offence to be seen in the company of a well-known criminal, according to an Australian law.

RELIEVE PERIODIC PAIN

If you suffer from periodic pain, discomfort, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets. In most cases they bring welcome relief. As Mrs. Caroline Newman says: "They are the pain."

Mr. Raymond Chapin, Route 4, Tubury, Ont., says: "I suffered from terrible headache and dizziness. I was worn out. Your Tablets helped me. Let them help you, too. Ask your druggist."

"Too Much Wealth
In The Hands Of A Few People"

In the countryside, in streets of villages, towns and cities; in homes, in market places, from pulpits and public platforms; from men in many walks of life you hear the same pronouncement—

"Too much wealth in the hands of too few people."

Who can rectify such an unsatisfactory state of affairs?

In many instances the people themselves have the remedy.

In the grain business the grain growers have the remedy in their co-operative marketing organization. All they need to do is to give their patronage.

Co-operative organization is the most effective means of preventing accumulation of great fortunes in the hands of a few people.

Co-operation never makes millionaires.

The depressed price of farm products is a problem with which everyone is familiar, but on the 1913 basis farm product prices have never been as low as gasoline. Between 1913 and 1920 gasoline did not rise in price to nearly the same extent as farm products, yet since 1920 its price has almost continuously declined. The data for the above graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

A FAIR DEAL POLICY

In the fifty-four years of its existence, Imperial Oil Limited has always welcomed legislation in the interests of labor and the basic industries. It has never had a labor dispute. It has always paid fair wages. To the greatest extent possible it has provided continuous employment and it has given its workers increasing leisure so as to expand employment. It has sickness and death benefits and old age pensions because it believes that the worker and his dependents are entitled to such protection.

Imperial Oil has always tried to deal fairly with collateral industry and with its competitors. Its success in this connection is indicated by the fact that it has never had a major lawsuit. It has always recognized the principle that the only satisfactory business transaction is the one which affords a fair profit to all parties concerned. It has fulfilled all its undertakings. It has enforced no onerous claims on others.

Imperial Oil has always tried to deal fairly with the consumer. It has continuously improved the quality and steadily reduced the prices of its products. It has invested millions to make these products always available wherever they may be needed.

In 1934 Imperial Oil earned $3,025,400.12 from its Canadian manufacturing and marketing operations. This, you may say, is a lot of money, but to earn that amount Imperial Oil had to make and market goods to a value of $82,841,311.15. The stockholder who in the course of a year sold $8,280 worth of goods and made a profit of $80 would not be regarded as enjoying an undue measure of prosperity.

But his ratio of profit to the total volume of his business would be the same as Imperial Oil's.

It has been Imperial Oil's practice to "make wisely, measure truly, trade justly" for this it believes to be the secret of success.
